Scene 1 – Competitive

Narrator: The company is not profiting much from its newly launched product the Alpha energy drink. seeing this declining profit the boss has called for an urgent meeting

Boss: A very morning everyone or ill say not so good of a morning. As we know our newly launched product the Alpha energy drink is not doing so well in the market. The loss is major and I need you'll to come up with a solution to get our product on track. Ill sanction 20 lakhs for your new ideas so keep the budget in mind. You'll have 2 months to decide on this if not then I have to think about your futures in this company

Boss leaves the conference room.

Manish (Design): I think we need to get make a plan and understand why we are getting such results. My opinion is that the packaging is boring. If we don't redesign it, no one will even notice our drink."

Xerxes (Quality Control): “That’s not true. The real problem is taste. People won’t buy it again if it doesn’t taste good.” I think we need to add more Flavors in the market.

Nirmala (Finance): “Hold on, both of you are forgetting the budget. We don’t have money for big changes.”

Rakhi (Marketing): Budget or not, if we don’t advertise, nobody will even hear about Alpha Energy. Marketing is the key!” so, my suggestion is that lets put the money in marketing get a famous actor

Manish (Design): Are you serious another actor. We have already signed Vidyut Jamwal. we don’t need another one lets stick to the designing part lets invest the money in designing.

Xerxes (Quality Control): Everyone here me out. We have a design and we already have a good actor for the advertisement what we should focus on is just the ingredients. Probably well reduce the caffeine intake and add more flavors and also make it much more better with less artificial stuffs

Nirmala (Finance): Mr. Dessai let me tell you we have just 20 lakhs and if we spend all on your idea and if it fails which I know it will then all the money is gone and we all will be out of the company.

More argument

(Everyone talks over each other, trying to prove their point. No one is ready to back down.)

Scene 2 – Avoiding

Narrator: The tension is high, but now the team avoids the fight.

Manish: we have 2 months “Maybe we should just wait and see how sales go next month.”

Xerxes: “Yeah... let’s not argue right now. We can check later.”

Nirmala: “I’ll look at the budget another time.”

Rakhi: “Fine, I’ll hold off on campaigns for now.”

(Everyone avoids the issue. Nothing gets solved, but the room feels calmer.)

Scene 3 – Accommodating

Manish: “Okay, I’ll drop the redesign idea. If taste is the bigger problem, let’s fix that first.”

Xerxes: “Thanks, Manish. That helps us focus.”

Nirmala: “Good, that saves money too.”

Rakhi: “Alright, I’ll wait until the taste is improved before I push ads.”

Scene 4 – Compromising

Xerxes: Everyone I think that We don’t need a full reformulation. Just small tweaks to improve taste don’t worry ill make it in less

Manish: Ok well then mr dessai that seems great And I’ll make minor changes to the packaging, not a full redesign I feel some changes can fit to the budget what you say mrs Sitaraman

Nirmala: “I’ll also try to bring up a small increase in the budget, but nothing too big. Let me also play a part and help in it

Rakhi: “I’ll run a limited campaign instead of a huge one. And yes, there won’t be need of a new face well keep the old faces

Nirmala: That sounds good and the increase budget we can do a better campaign or advertisement

(Everyone gives up a little. They reach a middle ground, but it's not the perfect solution.)

Scene 5 – Collaborating

Narrator: Finally, they work together to create a win-win plan.

Manish: “I’ll redesign the packaging, but I’ll use cheaper materials so costs stay low.”

Xerxes: “I’ll improve the taste with small changes that don’t raise expenses.”

Nirmala: “I’ll adjust the budget to support both changes without overspending.”

Rakhi: “Perfect! I’ll design a campaign that highlights the new look and better taste together.”

(Everyone’s ideas are included. The team feels satisfied and motivated and the companies profit increases.)
